Dear Mr. Johnson:

I read your article in the Musical Courier — an exceedingly good article — & it made me happy. — That you, who know the French so well, & say it so beautifully, should feel as you do about the words, is very precious to me.

I know, when I was writing it, that you never very likely going to sing the part, or often I used say I myself: I understand the words like this and I sing: — Is this too harsh in sound, perhaps? — are there too many short vowels here? — I cared so much that it should be truly singable.

— You will understand how happy I am that you feel as you do.

Sincerely yours,

Edna St. Vincent Millay
